

Dear FCC,I oppose the continued consolidation of radio stations in the United States, and would like you not only to reject the proposed rule changes, but to take steps to further limit the number of radio stations a single company or individual can own. I've stopped listening to the local FM stations her in Ithaca, NY because there is very little variety in the types of music and news present - instead, I try listening to the Ithaca College radio station - they carry advertising like the other stations, but have far more varied and interesting programs - and they talk about what is going on locally! I also recommend that you adjust the rules so that independently owned local stations can more easily broadcast news and music over the Internet, so that citizens can get news, music, and information unfiltered by national corporate policies. Further consolidation is bad for our country, our democracy, and for our communities at the local level. and I urge you to reject the proposed rule changes, and to take new steps to further limit the number of radio stations that any one entity can own.
